The skipper is required to acknowledge that they read the following statement:
This race is to be conducted on small craft on the open ocean. Severe weather, accidents or equipment failure could lead to potentially dangerous or lethal situations especially along remote ocean areas such as those encountered on this race. In addition, no support boats will be provided to aid sailors in need of help. Therefore, sailors must understand the significant risks associated with the race and only participate if they accept these risks. It is the sailors sole responsibility to determine whether to participate in this event based on his/her own ability, and understanding of potential weather and sea conditions. As a condition of entry, sailors will be required to sign a release form.

I have read and understand this statement.
